SUBCHAPTER 2

CALCULATION OF ROAD USAGE CHARGE

§19-154-7 Calculation of road usage charge; generally. Pursuant to section 249-36, Hawaii Revised Statutes, the state mileage-based road usage charge will be calculated as follows:

(a) When a vehicle becomes subject to the state mileage-based road usage charge, a vehicle's state mileage-based road usage charge shall be calculated as the difference between the vehicle's most recent odometer reading captured during the most recent PMVI and the second most recent odometer reading captured during the second most recent PMVI.

(1) During a vehicle's first year of state mileage-based road usage charge eligibility, the ending odometer reading used to calculate the state per-mile road usage charge must be at least 180 days from the starting odometer reading.

- (2) If the ending odometer reading is not at least 180 days from the starting odometer reading, the state per-mile road usage charge shall be calculated as the difference between the most current odometer reading captured during the PMVI which has not already been used and the third most recent odometer reading captured during the third most recent PMVI.
- (3) If the third most recent odometer reading captured during the third most recent PMVI is not at least 180 days from the ending odometer reading, the state default road usage charge will be used.

(b) After a vehicle's initial year of state mileage-based road usage charge eligibility, a vehicle's per-mile road usage charge shall be calculated as the difference of the vehicle's most current odometer reading captured during the most recent PMVI which has not already been used for calculation of road usage charge and the last paid odometer reading.

(c) If an eligible vehicle owner has a delinquent registration greater than one year, the owner shall automatically pay the state default road usage charge. The state default road usage charge shall be multiplied by the delinquent number of state mileage-based road usage charge eligible years past due, together with all other registration fees pursuant to section 249-36(b), Hawaii Revised Statutes. [Eff JUN 13 2025] (Auth: HRS $249-36) (Imp: HRS $249-36)

$19-154-8 Calculation of road usage charge; new vehicles. (a) Pursuant to section 286-26, as part of the registration of a new vehicle, the vehicle owner must provide the initial odometer value of the vehicle. This initial odometer value will be recorded and serve as the starting odometer reading for the purposes of calculating the state mileage-based road usage charge.

(b) At the first registration renewal of a new motor vehicle purchased on or after July 1, 2025, for which no certificate of inspection is required, a state mileage-based road usage charge shall be paid pursuant to section 249-36(a), Hawaii Revised Statutes.

(c) At the second registration renewal, the state mileage-based road usage charge will be calculated as the difference of the vehicle's most current odometer reading captured during the most recent PMVI and vehicle's initial odometer value. The state mileage-based road usage charge paid at the vehicle's first registration renewal shall then be deducted from that total.

(1) When there is missing, incomplete, or incorrect odometer reading information such that a state per-mile road usage charge cannot be calculated, the state default road usage charge will be applied and the state mileage-based road usage charge paid at the first registration renewal shall be subtracted from the total due.

§§19-154-9 to 19-154-11 (Reserved).

SUBCHAPTER 3

ROAD USAGE CHARGE CHOICE

§19-154-12 State Road Usage Charge between July 1, 2025 and June 30, 2028. (a) Upon the first registration renewal notice of an electric vehicle after July 1, 2025, the owner shall be offered a choice between paying the per-mile road usage charge or the flat annual road usage charge.

(b) Once an owner chooses the per-mile road usage charge at any registration renewal after July 1, 2025, the owner shall not be offered the choice of the flat annual road usage charge upon any subsequent registrations thereafter. This rule applies to any new or subsequent owner of the same vehicle.

(c) If an owner does not choose either the per-mile road usage charge or the flat annual road usage charge, the choice will default to the per-mile road usage charge.

(d) Vehicles subject to section 249-36, Hawaii Revised Statutes, that are also part of a permanent fleet of vehicles, shall automatically pay the per-mile road usage charge. [Eff JUN 13 2025] (Auth: HRS §249-36) (Imp: HRS §249-36)
